Message from the Chair

Dear NEMLA members:
It is an honor to greet you as the new chair of NEMLA! I would like to thank our outgoing Past Chair, Suzanne Lovejoy, for all of her wonderful contributions over the last three years, and our current Past Chair, Anna Kijas, for her excellent leadership over the past year. Please join me in thanking Christina Linklater, Interim Secretary/Treasurer, who graciously took over from Jonathan Manton, and Carolyn M. Schwartz, our outgoing Newsletter Editor, for their service to NEMLA. I would like to congratulate and welcome our new officers: Kerry Masteller, Vice-Chair/Chair-Elect; Sarah Funke Donovan, Secretary/Treasurer; Erica Charis, Newsletter Editor; and Sofia Becerra-Licha, who is taking on a newly created position as Archivist.

This past May we had a varied and informative chapter meeting on a host of topics at Dartmouth College. Many thanks to our host, Pat Fisken, and other members of the Program Committee, including Kerry Masteller, Ilana Revkin and Maria Jane Loizou, for such a well-planned meeting. We learned about student media production in the Jones Media Center of Dartmouth College, using Omeka and geo-spatial tools as an alternative way to publish bibliographic research, how to train non-music librarians to handle music reference, and how OPAC displays can be improved with the use of XSLT. NEMLA members were given a tour of the impressive Baker/Berry Library, and some also took a guided walk around the beautiful Occum Pond on Dartmouth’s campus. If you were unable to attend this meeting in person, you can watch videos of the presentations.

The NEMLA Internship Email List is up and running! This list was the result of work completed by the temporary committee established last year, led by Sarah Funke Donovan, to serve as a source of information about internship programs in New England.

The NEMLA board will be meeting this summer at the end of July, and we will be discussing several issues, one of which is the updating of the chapter’s website. We hope to migrate to more up-to-date software that will do a better job of handling interactions with our members and improve our security. Watch for more details on this in future communications.

We are eagerly anticipating our upcoming fall chapter meeting, which will be held at the Boston Athenaeum on Friday, October 4, 2013. At this meeting we will celebrate NEMLA’s 50th anniversary! Kerry Masteller and the program committee are hard at work on planning this milestone event. I look forward to seeing many of you there, and hope that past NEMLA members will join us as well.

I am looking forward to serving in the capacity of chair for the upcoming year and welcome your thoughts and suggestions about the future of the chapter.

Respectfully submitted,

Jennifer A. Hunt, Chair

Coordinators shall be appointed for an initial term of two years, with the possibility of reappointment for no more than one succeeding term. Normally there are no other officers and no specified membership.

2. Authorization: the NEMLA Chair may authorize the establishment of a roundtable for a period of four years after receiving letters of support from three members of the Chapter identifying a common area of concern. Renewal of the authorization for additional four-year periods requires two letters of support. The letters are due to the Chair by Aug. 31 of the year of expiration. Roundtable authorizations expire Dec. 31. A roundtable may be dissolved by the Chair if it appears that it no longer serves a need or that its work could be carried on more effectively by a committee of the Chapter. If a roundtable fails to have a minimum attendance of four participants for two consecutive years, that roundtable shall be retired.

3. Activities: All roundtables hold two meetings a year convened by the Coordinator during the semi-annual meetings of the chapter. Roundtable meetings and other roundtable activities may be announced in the NEMLA newsletter and listed in the programs of the semi-annual meeting. Roundtables are encouraged to participate in developing programs for NEMLA meetings.

Spring Meeting Minutes

NEMLA’s Spring 2013 meeting at Dartmouth College began with a welcome from Jeffrey Horrell, Dartmouth’s Dean of Libraries. Mr. Horrell provided an introduction to the college and its libraries, as well as discussing the Powwow that was scheduled to take place the following day, including its historical significance to the college. This was followed by a welcome from Michael Casey, Dartmouth’s Music Department Chair. Mr. Casey discussed the music program at Dartmouth, with an emphasis on the Bregman Music and Audio Research Studio and the digital music program.

The first presentation in the morning session, Enabling and Encouraging Student Media Production in the Jones Media Center, was from Anthony Helm, the Head of Digital Media and Library Technologies at Dartmouth. Claiming to be the place “where the cool stuff happens,” the Jones Media Center provides students with all the resources necessary for viewing and editing digital media, including hardware, software, and staff support. Anthony discussed how the Media Center uses these resources to develop multimedia presentations in their classes. He showed how given the right tools and guidance, some students are able to communicate in a more meaningful way than they would through text alone. Anthony also showed how student employees get on-the-job training through engaging activities such as creating posters and mock movie trailers promoting the media center.

The second presentation in the morning was from Anna Kijas, the Music and Dramatic Arts Librarian at UConn, entitled Creating an Alt-Bibliography Using Omeka and Geo-Spatial Tools. Anna discussed how she originally planned to publish a print bibliography of Teresa Carreño, but realized that she could do more in a digital environment. With the goal of documenting Carreño’s life online in a manner that will be flexible enough for scholars and the public to use and add to themselves, Anna examined several online tools that could help her achieve this. After briefly discussing how both Viewshare and WordPress could be used for a project such as this, Anna showed why Omeka, designed for content management and digital collections, was the tool she finally settled on. One of the most interesting aspects of this project is the use of the Neatline plugin to create geo-spatial and temporal visualizations of concert tours. Anna has been able to use this tool to plot objects, text, and narrative on both modern and period maps. Anna’s hope is that this online environment will be more interactive than a print version and will allow others to contribute to this project.

Following lunch, the business meeting was held. Election results were announced with Kerry Masteller elected as Vice Chair/Chair Elect, Sarah Funke Donovan elected as Secretary
Treasurer, and Erica Charis elected as Newsletter Editor. Sofia Becerra-Licha, the new NEMLA Archivist, was also introduced. The next two meetings were announced for October 4 at Boston Atheneum (celebrating the 50th anniversary of NEMLA) and March 28 at Brown University.

After lunch, Ramona Islam and Reed Lowrie presented Busy Bees: Training Non-Music Librarians to do Music Reference. They discussed how the Harvard libraries have developed an approach based on Adult Learning Theory, based around the apprenticeship approach, for new reference librarians to learn from more experienced librarians, and particularly those who have different specialties. Their approach involves bringing new and experienced librarians together to discuss approaches to answering specific complex reference questions in a cooperative and conversational environment. Working with a campus expert on assessment, they found that the new and experienced librarians enjoyed and learned from this approach, which allowed them to work on difficult questions without the stress of doing it in front of a patron.

The final presentation in the day was Improving OPAC Displays Through XSLT: A Koha Success Story, given by Sam Cook, Public Services Librarian at the University of Hartford. Sam demonstrated how the University of Hartford Libraries have been able to modify the displays of bibliographic data in their Koha OPAC in ways not possible in most other systems. This is thanks to a powerful and flexible code called XSLT, which allows the MARC data to be displayed in the OPAC in nearly any manner imaginable. Sam showed examples of how the University of Hartford Libraries have taken advantage of this to improve their own displays, and he also encouraged the attendees to speak to their own vendors and advocate for getting similar customization ability in their own systems.
It's our 50th anniversary! Mark your calendars—the fall 2013 NEMLA meeting will be held on Friday, October 4 at the Boston Athenaeum, Boston, Massachusetts. Join us to reminisce about NEMLA's past, celebrate its present, and look forward to its future. We'll hear from a panel of long-time NEMLA members sure to have lively anecdotes to share about the history of our chapter and the changes they've seen in music libraries over their careers. Joe Boonin, who was present at our first meeting (held October 19, 1963, at Wellesley College), is even travelling from California to join the celebration! To whet your appetite, you may enjoy this history of the
The Athenaeum, one of the oldest libraries in the United States, opened to members in 1807; after occupying four earlier buildings, it moved in 1849 to its current location on Beacon Street, overlooking the Granary burying ground. Founded to serve as an encyclopedic library for its nineteenth century members, the Athenaeum today focuses its collecting in the humanities: its library of 600,000+ titles has particular strengths in Boston and New England history, biography, English and American literature, and fine and decorative arts. Its Special Collections are world-renowned, and include manuscripts and rare books, maps, prints, and photographs, paintings, sculpture, and archival materials reflecting Boston's culture from 1792 to the present. Conservators in the Athenaeum's dedicated Conservation Lab, opened in 1963, preserve its works on paper, and the library has put a wide range of its rare and unique materials online in its Digital Collections.

The Athenaeum held its first art exhibition in 1827, and since that date has sponsored art exhibits, lectures, concerts, film series, and other contributions to the cultural and intellectual life of Boston. Don't miss Collecting for a New Century: Paintings and Sculptures, highlighting some of the works of art acquired since 2000, on view in the exhibition gallery.

The Athenaeum is conveniently located at 10 1/2 Beacon Street, within walking distance of Boston Common and the Red and Green lines at Park Street Station. We'll be steps away from the Freedom Trail, and only a short walk away from Boston's Theatre District.

Our special thanks go to the Boston Athenaeum staff, and especially Paula Matthews, Caitlyn Landry, and Catherine McGrath for help with local arrangements and hosting NEMLA. The Program Committee for the meeting includes Maria Jane Loizou, Ilana Revkin, and Pat Fisken.
